Fashion

Fashion has changed over the years. Even from the 1900s-1920s. In 1900, the woman used to wear really long dresses that flowed down past their legs and ankles to cover them, because, back then, it was inappropriate to show you ankles and feet. But now, in the 1920's, the length of dress has definitely changed. Women can now wear clothes that show their legs.

As for men, if you left the house without a hat on, it was considered inappropriate. Men popular wore, striped ties, bow ties, Baggy Oxford trousers, and Double-breasted suits, ones that were made of flannel.

Popular thing that women wore would include, short skirts above the knee, dropping earrings, pleated skirts, pearl necklaces, and fashionable sweaters.

Make-up that was popular would be "heart shaped" lips and mascara was new "In" as well as plucked eyebrows.

Kids often wore little dresses and trousers, some wore overalls.

Movies and radios were in high demand in the 1920s. They just started to get popular. People that used radios, had to use headphones, and it was hard to hear the sound.

Movies that were created would included: Charlie Chapin Starring in "The Kid", "The Gold Rush" & "The Circus", Fritz Lang Starring in "Metropolis" & The Marx Brothers starring in "Cocoanuts". The movie studios "MGM", "Warner Brothers" and Columbia Pictures were founded in 1920.

Popular songs would include: "California, Here I come"

"If You Knew Suzie Like I Know Susie", "Ain't We got Fun", and "Happy Days are here again."

The "Installment Plan" was a plan, created so, people with less money, could still have the advantages that the richer people did.

People could by what they wanted, when they wanted too. They could buy the items they wanted and pay a small amount of it off, every little while.

Popular Items that people bought would include : Automobiles, Furniture, household appliances, and radios.

The "Haves" were the popular people in society, as for the "Have Nots", they were the lesser people in society. The "Haves" had better jobs and better pay, than the "Have Nots".

The Haves, wasn't only the people, it was certain items, that are new and are on the tops of peoples wish lists. They would include, Cars, which only costed 440$, telephones, and electrical appliances such as washing machines, toasters, and sewing machines.

As, I already mentioned, the Have Nots, had jobs that didn't pay well. Sometimes, they grew things that's they could try and barter with the storekeepers, to be able to get the small necessities. In the cities, it was harder for the Have Nots, to live. They often struggled from day to day, without electricity.

When the first World War started, the women of the Have Nots, took over jobs of the men, when they went to fight. When the men came back, most of them ended up losing their jobs. With most girls leaving school by grade 8, they were able to work as teachers, bookkeepers, and secretaries.

There was a lot of things going on from everything from penicillin being invented to the stock market boom.

Penicillin, was founded by Alexander Fleming. Vitamins B & B2 were created. Soon after that, Insulin shots for diabetes, was founded.

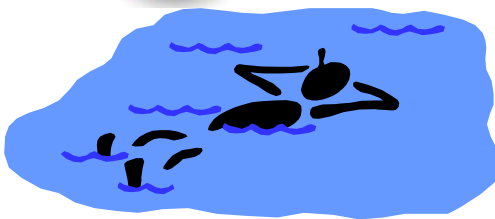

There was also many bad guys, and gangs running around the cities and towns in the 1920s. The worst ones to fear would be: Al Capone, Frank Nitti, Bugs Moran.

With the stock market boom, it ended up creating a mess called "The Great Depression." The Great depression caused many people to loose there jobs, and everything they own. It caused businesses to shut down and banks to fail. It was the biggest thing that happened in the 1920s.

In the 1920's, Canada called it the "Golden Age" for sports. Hockey could be heard from the radio, and it became very popular to attend sporting events, such as basketball, boxing, rowing, swimming and bike races.

In 1928, women being to compete in the track and field at the Olympics. The women's team won the gold in to 400-m relay. The rules were different for the men compared to the women, because it was considered unhealthy for the women to push them selves as hard as men.

There was many saying, and things that were cool to include when you speak. You would be considered up to date, such as when teenagers say "What up?" instead of, "What's going on?" Some of them would include:

What's your poison

Keep your nose clean

I'm with you, Pal

Someone's the cat's meow

Yes, we do no bananas

Don't Take any wooden nickels

Bad advice was known as "Bum steer"

Going to Prison was known as going to the "Big House"

Vomiting was called "Upchucking"

Recorded Music was known as "Canned"
